From MTG Wiki Magic: The Gathering - Puzzle Quest is a game developed by Hibernum Creations and published by D3 Go! and Wizards of the Coast on December 10, 2015. [1] [2] Description[edit | edit source] The game, based on the original Puzzle Quest combines role-playing with strategy and puzzle elements. It uses a competitive Bejeweled-style playfield to simulate combat and other common to playing role games. Players engage in incisive conflicts with competing planeswalkers and monsters through match-3 puzzle battles, earning levels and accumulating a collection of powerful creatures, spells and artifacts along the way. The cards you play are triggered by the matches you make. Once you have enough, the cards in your hand will play automatically , but you'll be able to decide on their order manually. It was released for mobile systems in December 2015. Gameplay Magic: Gathering - Puzzle Quest puts the player in the role of one of several planeswalkers that fight against a number of enemies, including other In the event that the The magic side is based on the at-the-time current Magic Origins card. At the beginning of the game, the player gets access to one planeswalker and a series of cards. As they progress through the game, the player acquires an in-game menu that can be used to level up the Planeswalker, which increases their health and unlocks some in-game capabilities, or spend on card decks to expand their card library. The game also allows Microtransactions to buy new card decks. Outside the match, the player can edit the cards in their Planeswalker library. As in Magic, cards are generally tied to one or more of the five colors of Mana: white, blue, black, red or green. Planeswalker is associated with one particular Color Mana and can only use cards that have this type of Mana. Cards represent three main categories of spells: summon spells to keep creatures on the field to fight, spells that can affect creatures in different ways, and support cards that affect the board in different ways. In the match, the player is pitted against another opponent who has his own deck of cards and health. The player and opponent start with three random cards dealt, placed in sequence, in their hard condition. To hand over the card, players match gems by exchanging two adjacent gems on the gemstone deck that represent five Mana colors, as well as a colorless Loyalty gem type that is used to enable planeswalker skills. Unlike traditional Magic, the mana obtained from these gems is colorless and everything applies to the cards in turn; However, the value of each match is influenced by the planeswalker and can receive a mana bonus or be punished by mana for matching a given color. Closed gems are removed and new gems fall into place, and if more matches are made, these are awarded to the player to match. An additional bonus exchange is given if the player makes game 5 in a row. Before performing a match, the player can also activate any Planeswalker skills if they have enough loyalty points for it. At any time before matching gems, the player can change the order of cards in hand to be handed over in a certain order or priority cards. After matches and /or activating planeswalker capability, if any cards have enough mana, they are automatically cast, with the possibility of spells that can be held until the conditions are met, or the player decides to let him be cast. For creatures, players can only have 3 different creatures on the pitch at any time. Casting a new creature will require the player to select one of the existing creatures to remove. Alternately, casting the same type of creature that is already on the pitch will add strength and defense of the new creature to the existing one. As with Magic, creatures generally suffer from convening diseases and cannot attack at the turn come into play. Once player spells are passed, the fight is resolved automatically. By default, creatures automatically attack an opponent and damage that player with their current offensive value. effects will change this offensive behaviour. For example, creatures can be defenders, which will automatically force the opponent's creature to attack in front of the player. When creatures are attacked, they take the damage out of their defensive value. Unlike Magic, this damage remains permanent until the value drops to zero or lower, at which point the creature is destroyed. Once the damage is resolved, the opponent then goes. Once either player or opponent's health drops to zero, the match is over. The player is awarded an in-game menu, regardless of win or loss, although the value is much higher for winning. The player can also receive additional rewards for completing matches with specific conditions, such as winning in a small number of rounds. Any damage done by the planeswalker character will take a certain amount of real-time regenerate, so that the player can not immediately attack the opponent after defeat, although the player can use a healing potion that complements over time, fully heal the character, or can switch to another planeswalker to use. Game currency magic: Assembly - Puzzle Quest has three forms of in-game currency: Mana Runes, Mana Jewelry and Mana Crystals. Mana Runes Mana Runes are the standard currency in the game. They are used to level up your planeswalkers. Players are rewarded with runes for completing Story and Quick Battle duels. Players can also receive runes by collecting daily rewards. In Story mode, players receive a larger amount of runes for winning the duel for the first time, increasing the amount as you progress through story mode; subsequent winnings award 100 run. Players also receive 50 runs per loss in Story mode. In quick battle mode, players receive 300 runs per win, and potentially more for defeating opponents at a high level. Mana Crystals Mana Crystals are premium in-game currencies. They are used to buy new Planeswalkers and Booster Packs. Players are rewarded with Mana Crystals for completing secondary goals in story mode. Players can also get crystals by collecting daily rewards. As in most free to play games with premium currency, players can purchase Mana Crystals at the following rates (prices in USD): 100 Mana Crystals for $4.99 220 Mana Crystals for $9.99 500 Mana Crystals for $19.99 $1300 Mana Crystals for $49.99 3000 Mana Crystals at $99.99 prices may vary depending on special sale and VIP status if paid for a monthly subscription. Mana Jewelry Mana Jewels are used to purchase an Elite Pack that offers one card. This package guarantees mythical, and has a chance at championship cards. Every 2 weeks, a new selection of Mythic and Masterpiece cards will be available through the Elite Pack in the vault. You can view the current rotation of the tabs by clicking the Show Tabs info button. One Elite Pack costs 400 Mana Jewelry. Daily Rewards Magic: Gathering - Puzzle Quest has a daily rewards system that rewards players with a currency game or booster pack to sign up Day. Rewards follow a 30 day pattern of progressively larger rewards per calendar month: Runes > Gold > Crystals > Runes > Booster Pack player who collects 21 rewards for a specific calendar month will also receive a special card in addition to 21. Rewards are based on the calendar month and are renewed to day 1 at the beginning of each month. References kotaku Obtained from
